School Library Development Organisations

In seeking to develop a school library, a few aspects need to exist or be planned for:

- A committed vision
- Access to a space for locating a collection and creating a research and reading space
- Some funds or other way of supplying materials needed; ingenuity can go a long way in creating a library
- Method of cataloguing and circulating resources

Below you will find links to online and print manuals on how to develop a school library. There are also links to free library management systems if this suits your circumstances. Creative library ideas from around the world are offered to help you think about how a library might work best in your situation. Finally there are links to some book donation and school library development organizations in case you are seeking this type of assistance. IASL is committed to supporting the development of school libraries around the world. Please contact a Board member or the International Development SIG for advice.

CREATIVE LIBRARY IDEAS FOR PARTICULAR SITUATIONS

Library Tool Kit Project - Federated States of Micronesia (FSM)

The College of Micronesia came up with a wonderful idea for their geographical situation of many small islands which are in the early stages of library development and which need support at different levels. The project consisted of two parts: the Tool Kit and a mini Resource Library

(1) Library Tool Kit -- for schools/communities in the FSM at the beginning stages of library development. Contents:

- * Binder of articles and locally produced materials on using volunteers, writing grants, etc.
- * Manuals and articles of the most use to developing library workers in the FSM, including Library Job Descriptions, and Training/Learning materials of most use to school staff interested in starting their own libraries.
- * Case-Study video written and created in Pohnpei State showcasing local initiatives to develop libraries on our island providing inspiring examples of what other schools may do.

(2) Resource Kit/ Mini Resource Library -- designed for the enhancement and development of established libraries. Contents:

- * Video on information literacy skills
- * 8 books on various aspects of basics of library organization and management, teaching information literacy/library skills, collection development, information technology etc.

The kit materials are encased in a Rubbermaid Action Packer, which is a waterproof lockable container to make them seaworthy, so that they can be safely transported on inter library loans to outer islands by air, boat, canoe or truck. (With thanks to Jean Thoulag and Sara Krosch for this information)
